

AAMCO University Opens

AAMCO executives and franchise owners from around the nation were on hand on Saturday, February 21st, to cut the ribbon opening AAMCO University.

In August, AAMCO announced that the company would build a state-of-the-art training facility in Newnan. The center will provide AAMCO technicians, managers and franchisees with service training through a best-in-class curriculum. AAMCO University offers both lecture and hands-on technical instruction for up to 60 people at a time and features both a theater-style classroom and a simulated repair shop.

Participating in the ceremonies were: Front Row: SFC Mike Adcock, Georgia State Patrol; Lt. Col. Robert Ledee, Armor4Troops Foundation; Dale Cardwell, Trust Dale TV and TrustDale.com; Mike Ganjei, President of the National AAMCO Dealers Association; Brett Ponton, AAMCO President and CEO; Lynn Smith, State Representative; Al Smith, Coweta County Commission Vice Chairman; and E. Jane Caraway, Georgia Department of Economic Development. Back Row: Jim Gregory, AAMCO CFO; Rob Rajkowski, AAMCO Chief Operating Officer; Rich Kolman, AAMCO Vice President and General Counsel; and Brian O'Donnell, AAMCO Senior Vice President of Sales.
