

START YOUR ENGINES: AAMCO Supports J.J. Yeley's No. 46 Car in Daytona 500

Transmission and Total Car Care Leader Showcases Commitment to Rising Star

HORSHAM, PA –

Look for the #46 AAMCO Transmissions and Total Car Care Centers car in this weekend's Subway

Fresh Fit 500 at the Phoenix International Raceway.

AAMCO is proud sponsors of JJ Yeley. "This is a great opportunity to sponsor a young driver that really overcame a great deal of adversity and race his way into the Daytona 500 and into the Subway Fresh Fit 500 in his hometown of Phoenix," said Jack Bachinsky, Vice President of Marketing for AAMCO, "We think it's a good fit with a great driver and will help us keep the AAMCO name out there as we prepare to celebrate our 50th Anniversary next year."

Yeley has six previous Sprint Cup Series starts and raced his way into the 2011 Daytona field thanks to his performance in the Gatorade Duel, coming from a lap behind with seven laps to go to take the checkered flag after a brilliant restart. He overcame a career-threatening neck injury after crashing at a dirt track event at Lakeside Speedway last year.

"I want to thank AAMCO for believing in me and sponsoring me and the team. It's a great brand that everyone knows and I am proud to race for them," said J.J. Yeley about his partnership with AAMCO.

ABOUT AAMCO

The AAMCO brand has approximately 900 automotive centers throughout the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico that all provide automotive expertise in diagnosing and repairing all systems owing to its nearly 50-year heritage in transmissions – the most complicated system in a car. Established in 1962, AAMCO centers are proud to have served more than 35 million drivers. Today, AAMCO is extending its well-known brand and Double A (beep beep) M-C-O signature from transmission service and repair to being a lifetime auto service provider by offering an unprecedented level of expertise and trust.
